

Pipelines control

One of the historic application of microwave links is the connection between sea oil platforms to the mainland refineries. Skylinks equipment had been widely used for this purpose.

Pipeline networks typically use fiber optic connections between the control center and the distribution sites were digital microwave links actually find application for back systems or repeaters.

